VOL. LXIV., No. 12. NEW YORK, September 19, 1903. WHOLE No. 1651

Second Edition Exhausted on Publication

Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler's New Novel

PLACE AND POWER

"The author's old lightness and cleverness of touch show throughout the book." —New York World.

"Miss Fowler keeps up her reputation for epigram, brilliant delineation of character and social climaxes."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Illustrated. 12mo. Cloth, $1.50

THE LAW OF LIFE

By ANNA McCLURE SHOLL

"Miss Sholl has handled her subject with admirable sureness of touch, with dignity and proper restraint. Her lovers are beings of flesh and blood, not puppets; she faces the problem fully, fearlessly: hence the compelling strength of the story, its exceptional merit as the product of an American pen."—New York Mail and Express.

12mo. Cloth, $1.50

NOTABLE NOVELS

For Busy Booksellers

The FILIGREE BALL

BY

Anna Katherine Green

Author of "The Leavenworth Case."

Those who like mystery tales —who doesn't?—will find that The Filigree Ball can be taken up much more easily than it can be laid down.—Chicago News.

Mrs. Green has quite eclipsed her former efforts in her new detective story. The recital is absorbing and the solution, until the author pleases, absolutely baffling. The plot is original and worked out with skill. For what it aims to be—a detective story—this book stands high, and it is highly recommended to the followers of Sherlock Holmes and Dumas—Frank Leslie's Magazine.

UNDER THE ROSE

BY FREDERIC S. ISHAM.
AUTHOR OF "THE STROLLERS." ILLUSTRATED BY HOWARD CHANDLER CHRISTY.

The dish of romance in Under the Rose is served up with plenty of cayenne pepper from beginning to end.—The Reader.

Lively wit, delicious fooling, fine feeling and perfect taste; therein lies the charm of Under the Rose.—Harper's Weekly.

The illustrations, by Howard Chandler Christy, are remarkable examples of what can be done in the way of color printing. Nothing more attractive has been seen in any of the year's novels.—Chicago Tribune.

TO LOVERS
Of a Good Novel
DON'T MISS

THE MAIN CHANCE

The Main Chance, by Meredith Nicholson is American to the core.

A story which will be read by all who begin it, which, moreover, will be commended and recommended by them after they have finished it. The illustrations, by Harrison Fisher, are beautifully printed in two colors.

N. Y. Mail and Express.

THE GREY CLOAK

The* NEW NOVEL by
HAROLD MacGRATH
Author of

The Puppet Crown

The Grey Cloak is welcomed by all who enjoyed the daring, the love-making, the fighting and the cleverness that made The Puppet Crown so universally popular. The Grey Cloak delights the reader, makes him forget the world in which he lives, abolishes for a time his cares and his responsibilities.

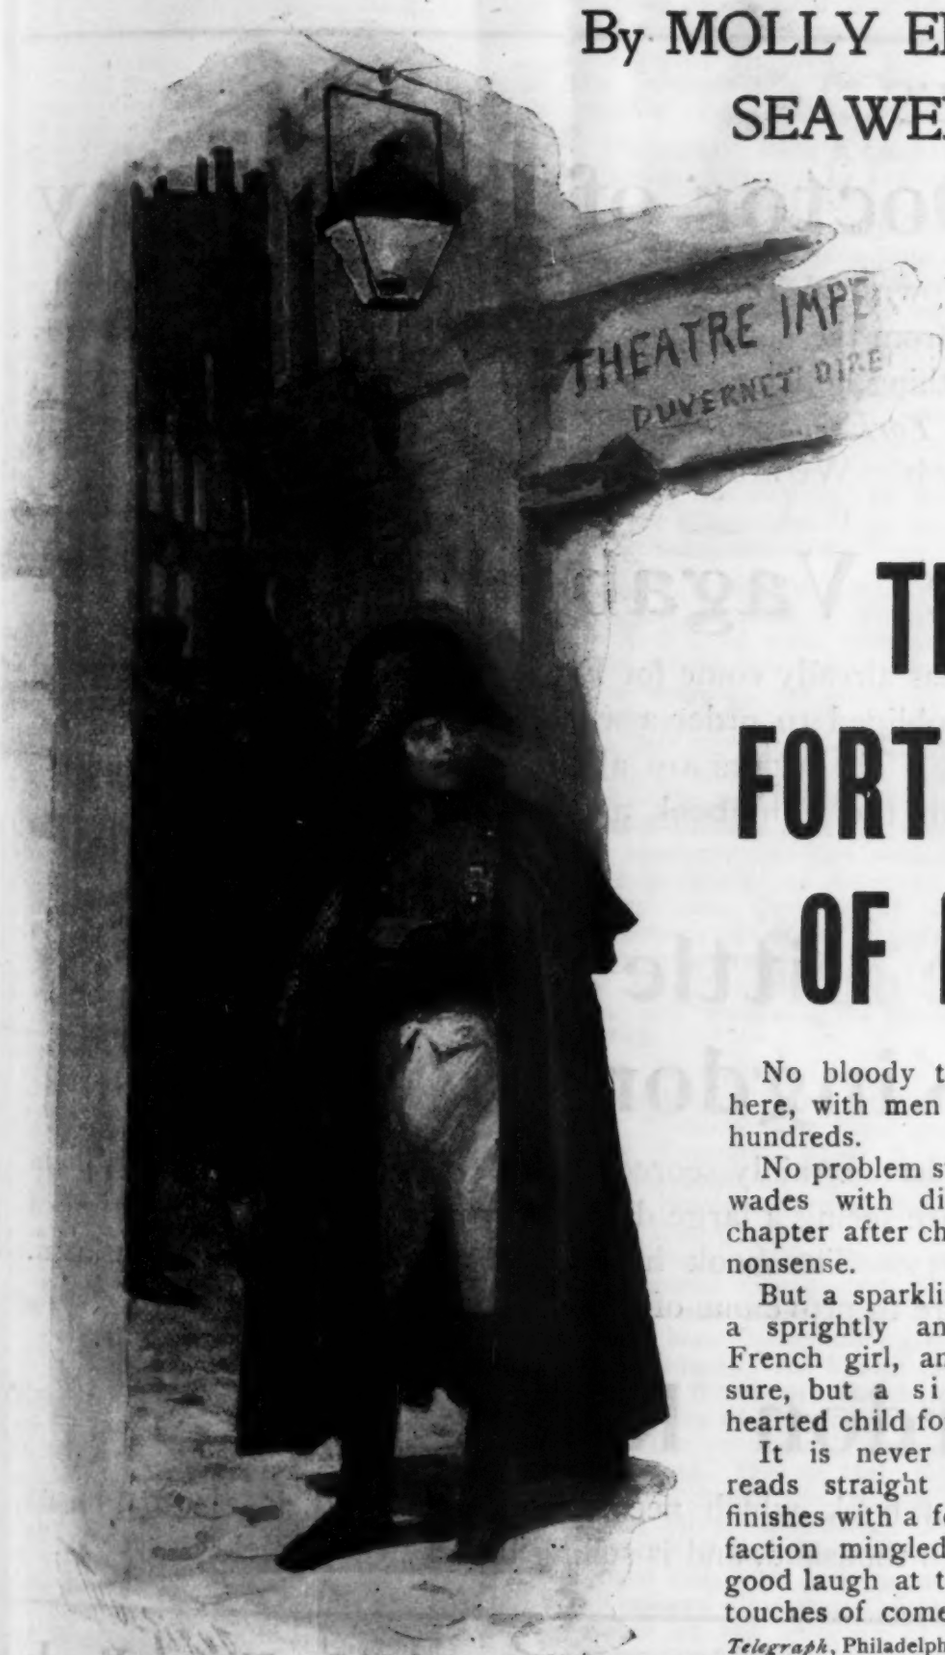
The Grey Cloak is a novel of action throughout, with love and fighting, and all sorts of interesting details. You will like this book very much.—New York Sun.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY, PUBLISHERS.

A NEW SPRIGHTLY ROMANCE

By MOLLY ELLIOT SEAWELL

Author of "The Sprightly Romance of Marsac," "Francezka," "Children of Destiny," Etc.



THE FORTUNES OF FIFI

No bloody tale of war is here, with men dying by the hundreds.

No problem story where one wades with disgust through chapter after chapter of erotic nonsense.

But a sparkling romance of a sprightly and wholesome French girl, an actress to be sure, but a simple merry-hearted child for all that.

It is never dull and one reads straight through and finishes with a feeling of satisfaction mingled with many a good laugh at the dainty little touches of comedy.—The Evening Telegraph, Philadelphia, Sept. 12th.

NOTES:

A Doctor of Philosophy

Cyrus Townsend Brady's new novel is having a very hearty greeting from the newspapers. The reviewers seem to think it is the best thing he has done, and HARRY THURSTON PECK says in the New York Journal that it's a book to make you think while you enjoy it. We are expecting some success for it.

The Vagabond

Success has already come for Frederick Palmer's lively story, and we were obliged to order a second edition before the first was a week out. The papers are all praising it in the way that makes success for the right book and we really think this is the right book.

The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come

Mr. Fox has certainly scored. With 35.000 sold before publication we are seeing a large demand growing up in every section of the country. The book has a rare gift of inspiring enthusiasm, and is sure to prove one of the best sellers in the land.

Gordon Keith

Here is a book which needs no pushing. It is already in its hundredth thousand, and is selling better every week.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HARPER & BROTHERS have brought out this week, in book form, a story for young people, which Thomas Nelson Page contributed some years ago to Harper's Young People. It is entitled "Two Prisoners," and is the story of a rich little girl, a poor crippled girl, a puppy and a mocking-bird. Through the unconscious agency of the dog and the bird both little girls were made very happy. Five colored illustrations have been made specially for the book by Virginia Keep.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just ready "A Sequence in Hearts," by Miss Mary Moss, a love story of to-day, marked by clever character drawing and quiet humor. They have also just ready a new story by Rosa Nouchette Carey, entitled "A Passage Perilous." Early in October they will bring out an important work by Professor Guy Carleton Lee, of Johns Hopkins University, entitled "The True History of the Civil War," which, it is said, will contain quite as much information "to astound the Northerner as it will to surprise the Southerner." The book will include a number of portraits and facsimiles.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. have just ready a posthumous volume by Frank Norris, the author of "The Pit," entitled "The Responsibilities of the Novelist, and Other Literary Essays;" also, the Golden Gate edition of Norris's complete works, in seven volumes, printed from new plates and appropriately bound. They also bring out this week "To California and Back," by C. A. Higgins and Charles Keeler, who give a lot of information about their California trip, giving prices, side trips, etc., with a large number of illustrations; "Quatrains of Abu'l-Ala;" also, "How to Study Shakespeare," by William H. Fleming, the third series of the author's ingenious Shakespeare manuals.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO. publish this week an "Encyclopædia of Household Economy," an A B C of home management, by Emily Holt, who covers the field from the choosing of a house to the managing of a kitchen or the planting of a garden; the eighth volume of the "Complete Works of William Hazlitt," which they are publishing by arrangement with Dent, of London; "Letters from a Chinese Official," which, though put out anonymously, give evidence of an intimate knowledge of American and European affairs; also, three works of fiction—"The Adventures of Gerard," a story of an officer in Napoleon's army, by Dr. A. Conan Doyle; "In Babel," stories of Chicago, by George Ade; and "Following the Frontier," by Roger Pocock.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish this month Mark Antony De Wolf Howe's new book, "Boston: The Place and the People," richly illustrated, which is similar in general character to Marion Crawford's "Ave Roma Immortalis" and Sir Gilbert Parker's "Old Quebec." Mr. Howe has been for twelve or fifteen years associated with the editorial management of The Atlantic Monthly and The Youth's Companion, and has also been literary adviser for various publishing houses. He knows the life and atmosphere, the history, the characteristics, and the beauties of Boston life as do few other men. The volume will contain a number of illustrations. One of their most elaborately illustrated books this year will be "Venice and Its Story," by Thomas O'Key, joint author with Bolton King in his "History of Modern Italy." It will contain fifty-two superb colored illustrations by O. F. M. Ward, member of the Institute of Water Color Painters, and fifty full-page drawings in line by Nelly Erichsen. It is said that the story of Venice has seldom been told with equal vigor, or equal success in revealing the color of Venetian life in all ages.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. ☜

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Dallas, R: A master hand: the story of a crime. N. Y., Putnam, 1903. [Ag.] c. 5+257 p. il. D. cl., $1 net.
A detective story. A young bachelor of quiet tastes, a few warm friends, and no enemies, is found dead, stabbed while he slept, in his New York apartment. There is no emphasis on the horrors of the deed, but the reader's entire attention is held to the detection of the mysterious murderer.

Danby, Frank, [pseud. for Mrs. Julia Frankau.] Pigs in clover. Phil., Lippincott, 1903. c. 396 p. D. cl., †$1.50.
"Pigs in clover" is the clever characterization by a London lady of rank, of the many South African and American millionaires crowding London, a decade ago, and striving strenuously to enter the sacred precincts of the "smart" set. The story has to do chiefly with one South African millionaire, who seeks to involve a high cabinet officer in his scheme to make over the Transvaal to the English crown. The period is just before the Boer war, the scene shifting from Africa to England. The fascination of an unscrupulous man and a woman's broken heart give the tragic note to a not over cheerful story.

"This edition of Charles and Mary Lamb's writings, of which the present volume is the first, differs from others in several respects. It is the first to include a considerable number of essays and poems hitherto unindentified or uncollected—some sixty pages in all; it is the first to include the 'Dramatic specimens' and Garrick extracts; and when the volumes containing the 'Letters' are reached, they will be found to contain, in addition to other new letters, a fuller share of Mary Lamb's correspondence than has previously been considered needful. The system of arrangement is also fresh, and in annotation a severer standard of thoroughness than other editors have thought necessary has been adopted."—General Introduction to works.

After graduating, the writer, a New England girl, failing to find the "journalistic opening" she sought, went into domestic service almost as an alternative to starvation. Her book relates her various experiences as cook, chambermaid, waitress and at general housework in New York houses. The graphic pictures she offers of her mistresses and fellow servants are most amusing, and account in a large measure for the difficulties surrounding the servant problem.

Spears, J: Randolph, and Clark, A. H. A history of the Mississippi Valley from its discovery to the end of foreign domination: the narrative of the founding of an empire, shorn of current myth, and enlivened by the thrilling adventures of discoverers, pioneers, frontiersmen, Indian fighters and home makers. N. Y., A. S. Clark, 1903. c. 9+416 p. il. pors. maps, facsimiles, O. cl., *$5 net.

The aim of this work, says the author, "is to give an account of the things done in the Mississippi Valley during the period of foreign control. It is intended to be a narrative, not a critical history. The writer has tried to tell about the achievements of the men who traversed the Great Lakes in birch bark canoes, or walked through the passes of the Alleghenies, to reach the Mississippi Valley, and, when there, turned the mighty wilderness into the Garden of the World." Naturally the story begins with the heroic Frenchmen who first learned the way to the Great Basin—Jean Nicolet, La Salle and others. Following is an account of the expelling of the French from the valley; then chapters on: The Spanish in the great valley; Pontiac's war; Lord Dunmore's war; The home makers in Kentucky; The instructive story of the work of George Rogers Clark, in the Illinois county, etc. The romantic narrative is profusely illustrated by rare portraits, views of historic places, maps, facsimiles, etc. Miss E. S. Clark furnishes many pen and ink sketches, for chapter headings, head and tail pieces, etc.

Stiles, Rob. Four years under Marse Robert. Wash., D. C., Neale Publishing Co., 1903. c. 15+368 p. por. O. cl., $2.

The author held the rank of Major of Artillery in the Army of Northern Virginia. His work is largely reminiscent of his service in the ranks under General Lee. In telling what "Johnny Reb" did and suffered, his book tells how and wherefore—what he was, what he felt, what he thought—why he fought. The battles of the Civil War as seen from the southern side are accurately and realistically described. Vivid sketches also appear of Lee, Jackson, Ewell, Early, Johnston, and other Confederate leaders. Comments appear upon Federal commanders, McClellan, Hooker, Meade, Grant, and many others.

A Robinson Crusoe like story. The Sirdar homeward bound from Shanghai is totally wrecked by a typhoon in the China Sea. Only two of her passengers are saved—one a charming young English girl and the other an ex-officer of the Indian Army. They are cast upon an uninhabited island, where they remain for about six weeks, a searching party finally taking them off. They have many romantic experiences besides falling in love with each other. The finding of a gold mine gives them fabulous wealth, and their island is invaded by Dyaks, the Borneo head hunters, who are besieging them, when the steamer sent in search of them appears.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 19, 1903.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE INVENTIVE WORK OF THE PUBLISHER.

IN Mr. Doubleday's summary of the work of a publisher, one of the series of papers on the choice of a profession which the Tribune has been printing for the benefit of those having this choice before them, he indicates one element of the success of the modern publisher which is too often overlooked. It is indeed emphatically true that while the old-time publisher sat in his office, made friends, (or sometimes foes,) of "his authors," and chose among the manuscripts presented to him those which he thought would bring him credit and profit, one or both, the publisher of to-day, who is up-to-date, must be above all things an inventor. He must devise new books, develop new authors, invent new forms of advertising, and discover, so to speak, new publics for his wares. As to books, he must be editor as well as publisher in both the inventive and revising functions of the editorial chair. Some years ago attention was directed in the chat of a great publishing house to the question of the proportion of articles in a leading magazine proffered by authors to those suggested by editors or publishers; and it was then a surprise to find how large a majority of articles, and particularly of the successful articles, resulted from suggestions from within the sanctum rather than from contributions of external origin. In fact, the pigeon-holes of the magazine were filled with contributed manuscripts accepted and paid for which were elbowed aside from month to month, and from year to year, by the more promising and pressing articles which had come from the editor's devisings. What was true then is still more true now, in both the magazine and book fields. Indeed, a large proportion of the books of to-day are the outcome of magazine enterprises which, by covering or sharing the preliminary cost, make possible many risks in book publication that otherwise would be questionable ventures. Incidentally, it may be said that few publishers have been better examples of the inventive faculty in publishing than the writer of the article which we reprint elsewhere.

Of course, this is particularly true of "series," as to which a publisher looks carefully over the field of knowledge or interest, divines in which the supply is less than the demand, and then plans a harmony of books which will fit well with each other and with the public demand which he has discovered or which he sees opportunity to develop. A great encyclopædia such as that originally projected by the Chambers brothers or such as that recently worked out with commendable comprehensiveness of plan and promptness of issue by Dodd, Mead & Co. in their "New International Encyclopædia," is especially in point—although, alas, the "regular trade" of the book shops does not usually get the benefit of this class of work.

This inventiveness of the publisher would naturally be thought not to apply to fiction; and yet, here also a number of the most notable successes in recent years have been partly the work of the publisher, and more than one successful writer of fiction is indebted to his publisher for suggestion, pruning, or revision, which made success possible where otherwise failure would probably have ensued; indeed, it would be possible to make a considerable list of novels in which the publisher quite as much as the author was responsible for the success achieved not simply from advertising, but from the literary point of view.

The man who is to rise in the publishing profession in the next generation must be above all things a man of ideas. The publishing business has not of late years made returns commensurate with the great industrial fortunes of the present generation or proportionate to the brains mixed with the product. Yet it still offers pecuniary as well as other reward, and as this great country grows still greater in population publishing will undoubtedly again attain its proportionate and proper prominence among the great fields of enterprise.

THE YOUNG PUBLISHERS' CHANCES.

Mr. Frank N. Doubleday, the senior of the firm of Doubleday, Page & Co., contributed to the New York Tribune for September 13 the following article on publishing, which forms one of the Tribune's series of articles on Careers for the Coming Man:

It is the custom, apparently, to consider one's own particular business in life as the most difficult and unsatisfactory of all the callings men follow. But in writing of one's vocation, just why one should always lay prominence upon its difficulties instead of its opportunities and pleasures I fail to see. Notwithstanding its drawbacks, I still believe that the publishing of books and magazines offers a good chance for young men of imagination, ambition and cleverness, and it is even fair to presume that the difficulties and troubles of publishing are in many respects more interesting than an equal number of trials in some other business.

So far as our experiences go, the young graduate who starts out to decide upon a career seems to be fascinated with the idea that in that it touches the literary side it must, therefore, be delightful—the literary aspect appealing to the imagination and the commercial to the practical.

In the successful working out of the problem we find that the imagination is quite as necessary to the business side, and that the ability to see visions and to work to the actual realization of them is the only thing that really counts. Books must not only be secured and printed, but a market must be discovered for them, and the ingenuity with which the readers are found is the final test.

The dignified day when the publisher sat in his office and decided from the manuscripts submitted which he should publish, and then sent the newly-made book to the booksellers with the idea that they would do the rest, passed away before this century was begun. If good books come to him and an eager public demands them and buys them through their own gracious good will, so much the better, and he may indeed be thankful; but if he waits for these conditions, he starves by the wayside. Perhaps the publishing business is changing, (most things are,) and the young men who can adapt themselves to the conditions that are coming and so be a little in advance of these changes and in line with them will reap an abundant success.

In a broad way it is true that the market for good books and magazines is larger than ever and rapidly growing; for a good many years traditions in publishing have counted perhaps most of all, and the average youngster has a hard time with traditions. But traditions go for less nowadays, and probably all publishers realize that there remain to be invented a good many ways of bringing the book and the reader together. How to sell the book—the single volume: novel, history, biography, or what not—to any really large proportion of the people who would buy if they knew of its existence is what the publisher wants to know. Books sold by subscription are more fortunate in this respect, since they do find a much larger proportion of the readers who really want and need a set of volumes—and a good many who do not.

To come to the present day conditions, one may consider that a publishing house, to exert any lasting force, will have four well-defined fields of activity:

First—The general or miscellaneous book publishing.

Second—Books sold by subscription methods.

Third—Magazines.

Fourth—Educational or text book publishing.

There are, it seems to me, more drawbacks to the first class than any of the other branches. One is that the publisher of miscellaneous books must practically recreate his business every year. The profits (and fortunately, also, the losses) are most variable—a popular novel may sell 100,000 copies this year, and hardly more than a thousand or so next year. This is a vital trouble; the expenses are regular—each success leaves a train of new ones—and the sales or profits irregular. Each book is a small or large speculation, as the case may be, and the residuum of books left at the end of the year which can be counted on for regular sale year after year is pitifully small. The merciful feature is that a novel which once gets the public's good will sells vastly more than in the old days, and is therefore more profitable, even considering the increased first expense of getting the public to know that it exists.

The obvious need, one would say, then, is to get those books of actual and acknowledged merit which will last, but it is not only difficult to get many such books, but the expense of making them and telling the public of them often takes a year, or several years, perhaps, to recoup the first investment. Meantime, the expense goes on at the rate fixed by the novel, which sells by the fifty thousands, we will say. All this can be remedied by getting for more serious work the sales secured for novels of temporary popularity. No doubt it can be done, but who will do it?

Another thing the coming publisher will do is to invent books which the public really wants, or thinks it wants, and he will manage to create the book to fit a need which only his imagination can foresee or guess at.

It has often been said that authors are as difficult to deal with as artists or musicians, but experience leads me to believe that the writers of books are no harder to do business with than the people who set the type and print the books or the booksellers who sell them. An author's book is his baby—"the child of his brain," I believe the correct phrase is. Can it be considered strange that he looks with dread upon the critic who wishes to chop out sections and passages of his pages, or remake what he has worked out with care and labor? One might as well expect a mother to have her baby improved by reducing the number of its fingers or reshaping its ears. The surprising thing is that so often is the publisher's opinion sought for and his advice accepted so readily. It takes tact to deal with writers, but no more than it does to deal with any other person of spirit—a lawyer, a doctor, let us say, or a trained nurse.

I fancy that it is the notion of having relations with distinguished authors which makes publishing appear attractive to the youngster choosing a career, but let him not forget that the pleasure and satisfaction of the relationship rest upon a quid and quo—that the publisher must do his part with skill and ability to keep the connection profitable to both. Many times his best is not good enough; but, then, his conscience need not trouble him, and he can let it go at that.

The subscription work has the great advantage of dealing with the buyer direct. The number of customers, and therefore the opportunities, are greatly increased. It would take a page of this paper even to mention the schemes which one must invent and which are still to be invented to work this out to its full field of usefulness. Happily, as a branch of the business which has always been more or less looked down upon, it is making its way up rapidly.

In the old days a book which cost 50 cents, and a worthless one at that, was forced upon an unwilling buyer for ten times that sum by the sheer force of the ferocious and untamed energy of a book agent. This old type of agent was a terror to the customer and to the publisher, and he robbed both the buyer and the seller with a high hand. His modern prototype scorns to sell by the aid of the hard luck story, and he leaves his customer with some remnant of self-respect, so that he may again sell the same man. Uncle Sam, also, has intervened, and now probably half of the subscription books distributed are sold by mail, and the very best books are brought into homes on the so-called instalment plan. How great this business is in the aggregate it is impossible to say, but it is known that about half a million sets of the Encyclopædia Britannica have been sold in this country—a book made primarily for the purposes of a people living three thousand miles away. This gives some indication of the possibilities. They have only been touched. Surely the books and the personnel will improve and buyers will multiply many fold.

Then we come to magazine publishing. A great publishing house needs at least one magazine—a half-dozen would be better if they might all have separate fields and the force could be gathered to run them all at a high level of efficiency. Mr. Harmsworth publishes forty or more in England, and all with success. The strong features of the magazine published in association with the books is too obvious to talk about, but even as a separate business it has many advantages over book publishing. For one thing, it has a more continuous life; once begun, with a fair share of success it is built up year after year on a solid foundation. The publisher has here also the pleasure of dealing directly with his customers, whom, if he is clever, he will interest as his friends both among his subscribers and his advertisers. His chances, too, are many sided and touch many departments: the suggestion of ideas in editorial contents, in illustrating, in plans for selling and in drawing into his net the elusive advertiser who won't be coaxed until all the others have been secured.

The sale of educational text and college books is a thing quite apart, and here the young graduate often finds his opportunity, his college training and experience doing him an immediate and assured service. As a book once introduced has the chance for a long and steady sale, the risks are less constant and the effort less spasmodic.

One would say that all these branches should be in a healthy state of vigor in this perfect publishing house we are talking of. In profits probably the magazines would yield best, then the subscription department, then the text books, and finally the miscellaneous book publishing, which is so apt to be "Prince or Pauper," with the accent on the latter.

If one looks over the field, one sees opportunities in abundance. The men, young or old, who can really do things are few and far between, but the men who can explain with great force and detail and with ability why they haven't done things are abundant. One comes upon a great many men who have ideas, and good ones, and can tell you how to work them out, but the men who have the ideas and can and do work them out are many days' journey apart. It is only by developing the men one at a time and letting the inexperienced newcomer try again the old schemes which we have tried in vain. Now and then he will make a success of some point which has been quite fruitless heretofore.

In the next decade the sale of books will certainly be vastly increased, and these are the men who will do it. One hears it said that nowadays it costs more than it did to launch a book. If by launching we mean selling a large quantity at the start, this is unquestionably true, but the cost of typesetting, paper, printing and binding have not increased. The real meaning is that more is expected in launching a book than was expected a few years ago, and this does cost money. The capital involved is perhaps greater, but capital for people who can make success is probably more easily secured than it ever was. Which, all being summed up, means that this writer has wasted a good deal of valuable space to tell again what is so well known—that the opportunities are great for men who deserve them and for those who cannot see and avail themselves of them the path is long and hard.

DR. HAMMOND SUSPENDED.

The Committee appointed by the Methodist Episcopal Conference in session at Pacific Grove, San Francisco, Cal., to investigate the charges made against the Rev. Dr. J. D. Hammond, formerly manager of the San Francisco branch of the Methodist Book Concern, reported on the 15th inst. that they found five of the six charges sustained. He was therefore sentenced to suspension from the ministry for a year.

The principal charges which were sustained against Dr. Hammond were neglect of the business of the Book Concern, destruction of account books and the transferring of trust funds to Eaton & Main, of the New York branch. Dr. Hammond was not held guilty of the charge of dishonesty which had been preferred against him, but was declared guilty of "high imprudence and unministerial conduct."

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY'S NEW BUILDING.

WORKMEN have begun the demolition of the picturesque old Arch Street Presbyterian Church, on Arch Street, above Tenth, Philadelphia, whose site is to be occupied by a large building for The John C. Winston Company. The church has not been used for several years, and its removal, says the Philadelphia Record, marks an important step in the improvement of Arch Street for commercial purposes. The inroads of trade have driven out nearly all the residents east of Broad Street, and west of that thoroughfare they are also gradually being forced out. The old church has long been admired for the purity of its architecture, and its disappearance will be regretted by many.

The new building which is to take its place will be the largest on Arch Street, and will be eight stories high, with a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 150 feet. There will be an arcade driveway around the entire building, with room for wagons to load in the rear, under cover. The building will be equipped with two freight elevators and a passenger elevator, fire-proof vaults and other modern conveniences. It will have an electrical power plant of 400-horse power, with steam heating, electric lighting, etc. The building will be of steel construction and semi-fire-proof. The front will have a granite base, with brick and terra-cotta above.

The contract price for the building, including the power plant, is $275,000. The value of the lot is $150,000. The entire floor space of the building amounts to about 135,000 square feet, or about three acres. The building will be completed in April, 1904, when The John C. Winston Company will move into it their offices and printing and binding plant.

NEW YORK POSTAL PROGRESS LEAGUE.

THE New York Postal Progress League held a meeting on September 11 at the Hardware Club, Postal Telegraph Building, 253 Broadway, New York, which was attended by about twenty-five representatives and gave evidence that the work of the League was steadily moving forward. Five of the members sent in their subscriptions of $100, two of them however being conditioned on raising a fund of $5000. David Lubin spoke at length on the advantage of an extended merchandise post to agriculture.

Colonel Albert A. Pope's Merchandise Post Bill was then considered and unanimously approved. This bill provides for the consolidation of second and third class postal matter, including authors' manuscripts, commercial papers, etc., and the extension of the present weight limit to eleven pounds, with the rates as follows: on parcels up to three ounces, 1 c.; over three up to six ounces, 2 c.; over six up to nine ounces, 3 c.; over nine to twelve ounces, 4 c.; over twelve ounces to one pound, 5 c.; on larger parcels for each additional pound or fraction thereof,

2 c.; on eleven pound parcels, 25 c.; this with house to house collections and delivery and with insurance up to the value of the parcel. On unregistered parcels the ordinary rates carry insurance up to $10. On registered parcels the 8 c. registration fee insures up to $25. On more valuable parcels the rate proposed is two cents for each additional $50 insurance.

One of the representatives announced that steps had been taken to secure the endorsement of Colonel Pope's bill by the Democratic State Convention which will assemble in Boston on October 1.

A vote was passed authorizing the president of the League to appoint a committee to confer with a similar committee of the Boston Postal Progress League with a view to consolidating both organizations.

Letters of regret were received from friends in sympathy with the work of the League who were unable to be present. One of these was from the Hon. Carl Schurz, another from the Hon. N. D. Sperry for a long time a member of the Congregational Postal Committee, who plainly declared himself in favor of an extended and cheap merchandise post.

A GOLDEN JUBILEE.

We take pleasure in noting the celebration of the golden jubilee of one of Thomas Y. Crowell & Co.'s staff, which took place on September 17. About the middle of September, 1853, George H. Allen, now the superintendent of the stamping room of the bindery of Messrs Crowell, on the recommendation of the late Thomas Niles of Roberts Brothers, then a member of the firm of Whittemore, Niles & Hall, secured a position as a journeyman in the stamping room of the bindery of Benjamin Bradley, one of the pioneer cloth book binders of Boston, who, in 1856, was succeeded by Thomas Y. Crowell. At about the time that Mr. Crowell took charge of the business Mr. Allen was made foreman of the stamping room, a position that he has held and filled faithfully and acceptably up to the present time, and seems likely to fill for some years to come. It is not often, in these days of "strenuousness" and "reorganization," that we are called upon to chronicle an event of this kind. Mistakingly, we think, this generation has little use for age and experience in ranks of trade and commerce, trusting rather to the dynamic force of youth, even though that must often spread destruction on its road to problematic success. Any concern should be able to utilize to great advantage the experience of its old employees, even if it were in no other capacity than as teachers and trainers of their younger successors. The Messrs. Crowell have always had this in mind in their dealings with their employees and reward has not been withheld from their methods. We therefore congratulate both parties on this occasion—Mr. Allen upon his long and honorable career in the companionship of such employers, and Messrs. Crowell upon their sagacity in appreciating faithful service in their employees that has drawn close to them the sturdy material which has made their house strong and well liked of all men.

COMMUNICATIONS.

AN ASSOCIATION FOR CUTTING PRICES.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

Sir: There has been formed by parties formerly in the subscription book business an association for furnishing books at cut prices, whose certificate of membership is sold at $2 and $3, the association agreeing to supply all books published at discounts varying from 10 to 40 per cent.

Last year, owing to lack of information on the part of publishers, these parties from their Cincinnati office were able to procure a considerable number of books, and some were sold by the association as agreed in their certificate of membership.

Naturally, as their methods became known, the difficulty of obtaining books increased, and new subterfuges became necessary to secure fulfilment of orders, some being sent through local agents in neighboring cities.

We are credibly informed that it is now intended to establish a regular bookstore in Cincinnati, and possibly in other cities, agreeing to hold prices upon net books. As this association for cutting prices, conducted by the same parties, is to be continued, the purpose of the proposed bookstore is obvious.

Having complete knowledge of the parties individually and of their commercial dealings, we feel that all publishers and booksellers whose interest is in maintaining net prices should be cautioned against allowing them to obtain books to be supplied as they propose.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Wilson Sherwood, better known as Mrs. John Sherwood, died suddenly at the Hotel Majestic, New York City, September 12. Mrs. Sherwood was born in Keene, N. H., in 1830, and was a daughter of James Wilson, a Congressman from that State. She married John Sherwood, a lawyer of New York. She wrote much on the subject of etiquette for newspapers and magazines, and recently gave readings. Among her books were "The Sarcasm of Destiny," "A Transplanted Rose," "Home Amusements," "Amenities of Home," "Manners and Social Usages," "Royal Girls and Royal Courts," "Sweetbrier," "Roxobel," "Here and There and Everywhere," and "The Art of Entertaining." Many of her poems were published under her initials, "M. E. W. S."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

Jack London, who has just achieved such a wide success with his dog story, "The Call of the Wild," will publish in the early autumn a book on life in the East End of London. It is stated that he has been "slumming," and that in the description of his experiences he will give "a vivid picture of the conditions of existence in squalid districts."

According to the bills of the play distributed on the opening night this season of Mrs. Fiske's performance of "Mary of Magdala," it was William Winter who made the translation of Paul Heyse's German prose play into English verse. It had never been publicly announced who made the translation, though the play was one of the distinctively great successes of the last theatrical season.

In connection with Harper & Brothers' publication of "Monna Vanna," the much-discussed Maeterlinck drama, a question has arisen as to the pronunciation of the Belgian author's name. The correct way is "Mahterlink," not Mayterlink or Metterlink, as it is variously called. The French pronounce it Mayterlink, because the sound of ae in French is "a;" but in Belgian French the ae is pronounced "ah." Maeterlinck is a Belgian, born at Ghent in 1864.

Harry W. Desmond, in conjunction with Herbert D. Croly, has written a volume on the "Stately Homes in America, from Colonial Times to the Present Day," which D. Appleton & Co. will issue in October. The authors describe about 100 houses and there are 150 illustrations. Much space is given to recent development in domestic architecture in America. Among the homes which are illustrated are those of the Vanderbilts, J. Pierpont Morgan, Clarence Mackay, William Astor, Andrew Carnegie, William C. Whitney, Mrs. Astor, Levi P. Morton, H. O. Havemeyer, Clarence Bowen, George J. Gould, Robert Goelet and many more.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Bayard, Ia.—Earl Branson has opened a book, stationery and drug store here.

Boston, Mass.—W. A. Butterfield, formerly with DeWolfe, Fiske & Co., has opened a bookstore in the Paddock Building, 59 Bromfield Street.

Leominster, Mass.—G. E. Kenney & Co. have succeeded Kenney & Divall, booksellers.

Lexington, Miss.—J. T. Jordan has opened a book and stationery store here.

Mexico, Mo.—Sanderson & Shearer, booksellers, have been succeeded by W. L. Craddock.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Raymer's Old Bookstore has removed to 15 South Third Street.

New York City.—The New Amsterdam Book Company on the 15th inst. made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to Andrew G. Dickinson, Jr., who has been the treasurer. A statement of the assets and liabilities will be prepared at once, and it is thought that with proper care the assets ought to realize more than enough to pay the creditors in full. The company was incorporated on March 2, 1902, with a capital stock of $50,000. A meeting of the creditors is held as we go to press.

Oakland, Cal.—J. A. Rowell has opened a bookstore at 125 San Pablo Avenue, between 15th and 16th Streets. He requests publishers and booksellers to send lists of new and second-hand books.

Perry, Mo.—Downing & Talbot have bought the book and stationery store of C. C. Fray.

Ponco, Okla.—G. R. Rummey has sold his book and stationery business to O. A. Panton.

Racine, Wis.—The Harvey Stationery and Supply Company has assigned.

South Norwalk, Conn.—T. J. Magner has been succeeded by W. P. Beers.

Washington, D. C.—A meeting of the creditors of Robert H. Merriam has been called by E. S. McCalmont, the referee, at 416 Fifth Street, N. W., for September 28, 10 A.M., to elect a trustee to dispose of the unsold assets.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

D. Appleton & Co. have in preparation in their Great Commanders series a biography of Admiral Porter by James Russell Soley.

Drexel Biddle, Philadelphia, publishes today, (September 19,) "John Burt," a story of the stock market, by Frederick Upham Adams.

A. C. McClurg & Co. will publish on the 26th inst. a new novel by Miss Margaret Horton Potter, entitled "The Castle of Twilight," a story of Brittany in feudal times.

G. W. Dillingham Company are publishing a new book by Cyrus Townsend Brady, entitled "Sir Henry Morgan, Buccaneer," illustrated with drawings by J. N. Marchand and Will Crawford.

The National Publishing Company, Philadelphia, announces a new "Mother Goose," edited by Newton H. Jones, illustrated in three colors. A new animal alphabet is added.

Thomas Y. Crowell & Co. will publish this fall a new book by Anna R. Brown Lindsay, entitled "The Warriors," which is of the same trend as her booklet, "What is Worth While," that has met with an enormous sale.

Charles Scribner's Sons are bringing out in a new edition, at a popular price, "Annie Trumbull Slosson's celebrated tale, "Fishin' Jimmy," of which 40,000 copies have already been sold. This issue will contain all the pictures of the three dollar edition, consisting of six full-page and eleven smaller drawings.

In settling up the estate of John Pollard Knowles, of Ballston, a copy of the so-called "Breeches Bible" was found. Only a few copies are extant. The book was printed in 1608. The volume is bequeathed to Mr. Knowles's cousin, John Knowles, of Bradford, England. John Pollard Knowles was a relative of Lord Francis Knollys, secretary to King Edward.

Andrus & Church, Ithaca, N. Y., will publish on October 1 a biography of John Chambers and an account of his ministry in Philadelphia, by Dr. William Elliot Griffis. The subject of this work was for fifty years a popular preacher and pastor of one congregation, and a man of extraordinary power. Dr. Griffis gives lively pictures of church life in Philadelphia a generation ago.

The Industrial Publication Company have just ready a manual of interest to builders and contractors, entitled "How to Measure up Woodwork for Buildings," by Owen B. Maginnis, inspector of buildings in New York City. They have also just ready an edition de luxe of "The Poems and Sonnets of Shakespeare," with an introduction by Professor Edward Dowden, which is limited to 260 copies for America.

THE HOBART COMPANY will publish on the 25th inst. "An Apache Princess," a new story by General Charles King. The story is that of the daughter of a stern old soldier, and her love for a man of whom her father disapproves. The young man is said to be loved by an Apache girl. The tale opens at Camp Sandy, Arizona, some time in the seventies. Frederic Remington and Edwin Willard Deming have made the illustrations.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS announces the publication of "The Battle of Kadesh," by James Henry Breated. The battle of Kadesh, which took place between Rameses II., King of Egypt, and the Hittites, upon the plain of Kadesh on the Orontes River, is the earliest battle in history in which the military maneuvers can be traced. The battle is described in detail, the successive positions of the troops being shown by maps.

THE FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just ready "Eleanor Lee," a novel by Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster, dealing with the love, struggles, joys and sorrows of married life and marked by that peculiar sweetness and charm that are characteristic of Mrs. Sangster's writing. They will issue this month "That Betty," by Harriet Prescott Spofford; "Sons of Vengeance," by Joseph S. Malone; also, "The Cark of Coin," by Harry Lindsay.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO. will publish on the 26th inst. a new story for young people, by Lily F. Wesselhoeft, entitled "Jack, the Fire-Dog," the hero of which is a dog who for many years shared the fortunes of a city fire-engine, and who by his sagacity and faithfulness was much beloved by the members of the fire company as well as by a large circle of outsiders, especially children. They have just brought out the third edition of "Barbara, a Woman of the West," by John H. Whitson.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish on the 22d inst. "The Romance of the Bourbon Châteaux," by Elizabeth W. Champney, author of "Romance of the Feudal Châteaux," etc. This volume will complete Mrs. Champney's series on the romance of famous châteaux. It will contain, besides a colored frontispiece, seven photogravures and forty half-tone illustrations. The author recounts legends and traditions which cluster about the mansions, throwing a sidelight on the romantic history of France.

J. F. TAYLOR & CO., New York, have just published two attractive animal stories for young people, by Mrs. Gabriele G. Jackson, entitled "Big Jack, and Other True Stories of Horses," and "Little Comrade, the Story of a Cat, and Other Animal Stories." Each volume has a frontispiece illustration. They have also just brought out a new edition of Leon Mead's and F. Newell Gilbert's "Manual of Forensic Quotations," with an introduction by the Hon. John W. Griggs, and portraits of famous orators.

THE SMART SET PUBLISHING CO. publishes this week John D. Barry's $2000 prize story, "The Congressman's Wife," a novel dealing with Washington and New York political life. Mr. Barry, besides being a novelist, has for several years been the dramatic critic of Collier's Weekly, and is an amateur actor of no small prominence, having appeared in Boston and other large cities in several dramatizations of his own novels, conspicuously "The Congressman's Wife." The book is illustrated in tints by Rollin Kirby.

PAUL ELDER & CO., San Francisco, Cal., have in preparation a collection of interesting and instructive selections from the writings of famous authors, under the title of "My Favorite Book Shelf," by Charles Josselyn, whose "True Napoleon" received favorable criticism last year. Unlike the usual quotation book, this volume includes passages of readable length so chosen and arranged in many cases as to epitomize the messages of the voluminous originals. The bindings will be from a design by Gordon Ross.

A. S. BARNES & CO. publish this week Samuel Merwin's new novel, "His Little World." They have arranged with Hurst & Blackett, Limited, for the publication in England of Michael Davitt's forthcoming book on dominant, racial and religious issues in Russia, entitled "Within the Pale," which will be issued shortly. An advance reading of G. W. Ogden's forthcoming novel of steamboat life on the Mississippi, entitled "Tennessee Todd," which Messrs. Barnes will publish early in October, has called out the comment that it is the best story of the Mississippi since Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn."

MARTINUS NIJHOFF, of the Hague and New York, announces a third series of the famous collection of "Original Drawings by Rembrandt," the first of which was published from 1888 to 1892 by F. Lippmann and the second series in 1900 by Lippmann and C. Hofstede de Groot. The third series will contain 100 drawings reproduced in the colors of the originals by Emrik & Binger of Haarlem. The series is edited by Dr. C. Hofstede de Groot, and the edition will be limited to 150 numbered copies. Mr. Nijhoff has secured a small edition of the superb work, "The Basilica of S. Marc in Venice," published in nine parts, in Venice, at 2333 francs, the separate parts of which he now offers to the trade at greatly reduced prices.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish next month "The Standard Second Reader," edited by the Rev. Dr. Isaac K. Funk; also, a "History of Socialism in the United States," by Morris Hillquit. In November they will bring out a study of the effects of character upon physical beauty, entitled "Builders of the Beautiful," by H. L. Piner; and a manual on "Electro-Diagnosis and Electro-Therapeutics," by Dr. Toby Cohn, translated from the second German edition, and edited by Dr. Francis A. Scratchley, of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, of New York. In December they expect to have ready a work by James C. Fernald on "Connectives of English Speech," explaining and illustrating the correct usage of prepositions, conjunctions, relative pronouns and adverbs.

A. S. CLARK, 174 Fulton Street, New York, has just published an important work entitled, "A History of the Mississippi Valley, from its discovery to the end of foreign domination." The work was written by John R. Spears, author of "The History of Our Navy," etc., in collaboration with A. H. Clark, the "junior partner" of the firm of A. S. Clark the well known dealer in old books and magazines. The work contains, as the sub-title explains, "a narrative of the founding of an empire, shorn of current myth." It does not claim to be a critical work, but simply a narrative and as such it commends itself to the general reader as well as to the student of history. The volume is liberally supplied with facsimiles, illustrations of historic places, maps and portraits. The book is published at a net price subject to no discount whatever except to bona-fide booksellers.

"THE History of the Treman, Tremaine and Truman Family in America, with the related families of Mack, Dey, Board and Ayers," prepared by Ebenezer Mack Treman and Dr. Murray Edward Poole of Ithaca, N. Y., just published with the imprint of the Press of the Ithaca Democrat, deserves notice quite as much as a literary production as for its contents. We doubt whether many authors of genealogical records have been as successful in presenting their material so clearly, concisely and so convenient for reference as have the authors of the work in question, as we also doubt whether in the record of five families so many noted members have been numbered together as in the two volumes brought out by Mr. Treman and Dr. Poole. The work, though the material has been admirably condensed, forms two octavo volumes of upwards of 2000 pages and is very fully illustrated with portraits, views, facsimiles, coats-of-arms, etc.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish to-day "Jewel—a Chapter in Her Life," by Clara Louise Burnham, the story of a lovable little Chicago girl, brought up wholly under Christian Science influence, during a visit with her rich grandfather in the East, and who according to Christian Science notions lives in a "castle of discontent." The contrasts are skilfully brought out by Mrs. Burnham. Maude A. and Genevieve Cowles have made some delightful illustrations for the book. They have also just ready "My Own Story," J. T. Trowbridge's autobiography, with many portraits and other illustrations; "The Clerk of the Woods," by Bradford Torrey, who has kept a record of the woods and fields in New England for a year, beginning with May, which to a bird gazer is "a short month," and ending with April; "Witnesses of the Light," by Washington Gladden, popular biographical studies of six great historical figures, showing how each one of them was, without always intending it, a witness to the Light of the World; "Essays on Great Writers," by Henry D. Sedgwick, Jr., nine papers, chiefly reprinted from the Atlantic; also, new editions of "Virginia," by John Esten Cooke, and "Ohio," by Rufus King, in the American Commonwealth series, with supplementary chapters; and a new edition of Scudder's "The Children's Book."

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have recently published the Teachers' Edition of the "American Standard Revised Bible," which contains a Concise Bible Dictionary with numerous illustrations from recent photographs and an entirely new Concordance to the American Standard Revised Bible, with twelve colored maps with an index to every place mentioned thereon. An India Paper Teachers' Edition of the American Standard Revised Bible is in preparation, and will be ready about October 1. They have also published an attractive Minion Type edition, at prices from 50 cents upwards, convenient for the pocket and especially suitable for Church and Sunday-school use. The Holy Bible with the Apocrypha and Marginal readings adopted by general convention, just published, represents the continuous labor for many years of the joint commission of Bishops and Presbyters appointed by general convention. The Marginal readings are intended to explain obscure or inaccurate passages in the King James' version. They have added to their large line of Prayer Books and Hymnals, illustrated editions containing artistic Woodbury gravure reproductions of celebrated pictures. Their Bibles, Prayer Books and Hymnals bound in white celluloid, white calf, white morocco, and genuine ivory make exquisite bridal gifts. They have also new shaped oblong Prayer Books and Hymnals which are dainty and unique, and handsome editions of Altar Services and Fald-Stool books, all of which are fine specimens of the printer's and bookbinder's arts. They also announce new editions of Text, Sunday-school Scholars', Reference, Teachers', and Pulpit editions of the Bible in various sizes of type and styles to satisfy the wants of everyone. The New Century Library of standard authors, printed on Nelson India paper, is growing rapidly. The size of these volumes is 4¼ x 6¼ inches, and though some of them have 950 pages they are no thicker than a monthly magazine. The recent additions are four volumes of Lord Lytton's novels—"Last Days of Pompeii," "Night and Morning," "The Last of the Barons," and "The Caxtons," the last-mentioned volume to be issued next month; four volumes of Charles Lever's novels, "Charles O'Malley," "Tom Burke of Ours," "Jack Hinton" and "Harry Lorrequer," this latter to be ready next month; "Jane Eyre," by Charlotte Bronte; "Westward Ho!" by Charles Kingsley; "Pride and Prejudice," "Mansfield Park and Northanger Abbey" in one volume, also, "Sense and Sensibility," "Emma," and "Persuasion," by Jane Austen, in one volume. A large and varied line of choice juveniles and toy books has been gotten ready for the holiday season at prices from twenty cents upwards.

If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

NEW HARPER PUBLICATIONS

Orchard-Land

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Author of "Outdoorland" etc.

A book for children, similar in scope to "Outdoorland." In the orchard the children make the acquaintance of the birds, field-mice, chipmunks, insects, etc. All is told in a delightful manner, which will appeal to children while teaching them much concerning natural history.

Companion story to "Outdoorland," illustrated with seven full-page pictures in color and many marginal drawings; richly ornamented cloth cover, $1.50 net (postage extra)

A History of the German Struggle for Liberty

Vol. III.

By POULTNEY BIGELOW, B.A.

This, the third volume of Mr. Bigelow's absorbing recital of the German fight for nationality, tells of the period between 1815 and 1848. Prussia's condition after the battle of Waterloo, a sketch of the first German emperor, accounts of the Carlsbad Decrees, and of the difficulties in which the Holy Alliance found itself, these are a few of the many topics included. A spirited account, told with calm judgment, fervor, and enthusiasm.

Illustrated. Uniform with Vol. I. and II. Ornamented cloth, uncut edges, gilt top, $2.25 net (postage extra)

HARPER ART CALENDARS FOR 1904

The Morning Glow of Childhood Calendar

One of the most beautiful and most acceptable calendars ever made. It consists of seven pictures by Alice Barber Stephens reproducing the tenderest scenes of childhood. On the cover is pictured a mother and her child, seated under a tree in an orchard, the little fellow's arms lovingly clasped about his mother's neck. The 6 charming pictures that follow show similar scenes. Printed in tints on heavy white cardboard, suitable for framing. Two bows of satin ribbon. Size, 14 x 22 inches. In a box, each, $2.00.

The Tragedies of Childhood Calendar

Four delightfully humorous pictures, in bright colors, reproducing drawings by Miss F. Y. Cory. The pictures are mounted on a heavy olive green card; decorative title-page; two bows of ribbon; in envelope. Size, 12 x 18 inches. $1.50.

The American Artists' Calendars (Six Subjects)

There are six calendars in this group—a single picture to each one; by such artists as Frederic Remington, E. W. Kemble and A. B. Frost; in full colors, with pastel effect, heavy brown mats; red satin ribbon on each for hanging. Size, complete, 12½ x 20 inches. Each, 75 cents.

The Players' Calendar

Twelve cardboard leaves, each of which bears two or more portraits of well known actors and actresses, beautifully reproduced in tint, with facsimile signatures of the persons they represent. Cover in two colors. Size, 10½ x 16 inches. In envelope, $1.50.

The Marlowe Calendar

Six portraits of Miss Julia Marlowe, reproduced in tint, thirteen pictures in all. cardboard back and satin ribbon hanger. Size, 10½ x 16 inches. In envelope, each, 75 cts.

A Garden of Girls Calendar

Twelve attractive drawings, one for each month. The drawings show many lovely types of womanhood, reproduced in tint on heavy cream colored sheets, each separate, suitable for framing. The twelve sheets and title-page are enclosed in a decorated cover. Size, 12 x 18 inches. $1.50.

A Calendar of Stage Favorites

CLARA LOUISE BURNHAM'S

NEW CHRISTIAN SCIENCE NOVEL

JEWEL

A CHAPTER IN HER LIFE

Illustrated. $1.50

A Christian Science novel by a Scientist, the author of "The Right Princess," which was published last year and became one of the popular books of the season.

It tells of the life of a little girl who, by her lovable disposition and faith, heals all family feuds and brings pleasure into the life of her crabbed old grandfather.

Jewel reminds one continually of Little Lord Fauntleroy, and is perhaps the strongest character created by this popular author.

Famous Assassinations of History

By FRANCIS JOHNSON

Illustrated with 31 portraits

The thirty assassinations so famous in history, which are narrated in this volume, have never before had their stories told in a collected form in any language. They embrace a period of nearly twenty-five centuries, from Philip Macedon to the late episode in Servia. Only those assassinations have been included which either had an important and political bearing on the world, or on the nation immediately affected, or which left a profound and, it would seem, indelible impression on the imagination of contemporaries and posterity. It has been the object of the writer to make each of these "famous assassinations" the central scene of a picture, in which the political, religious, or national features of the epoch are portrayed.

PUBLISHERS are gradually realizing the importance of two vital facts, especially when contemplating having large editions bound.

FIRST—To have their books bound in the best possible manner.

SECOND—To save enough money thereon as will guarantee an enormous annual extra dividend.

You are certainly not averse to making money. Ask me to submit samples and estimates. You will then follow the lead of some of the best publishing houses who find it profitable to give me their work.

Publishers' Trade List Annual

for 1903 comprises the lists of upwards of three hundred publishers—over eighty lists more than the work has before contained—which greatly enhances its value to the bookseller as an inexpensive work of reference for books in print.

Trade List Annual, 1 vol., over 5000 p., 8vo, cl., $2

INDEXES

We have now ready a supplement to the Index volume of last year which includes (1) the titles of the books of those publishers who were not represented in last year's Catalogues volume; (2) the titles of the new books published since the issue of last year's Trade List Annual by the publishers represented in the 1902 and 1903 volumes; and (3) the titles which were reported too late for insertion in last year's Index volume, as well as corrections, etc.

Supplementary Index. 1 vol., 284 p., 8vo, cl., $2.50

Only enough copies of the Supplementary Index will be printed to supply the demand from those who purchased last year's INDEX and to bind up with the small number of the remaining copies of last year's INDEX, into a comprehensive volume of 1400 octavo pages

Combined Index, 1902–'03, 1 vol., 1400 p., 8vo, cl., $6

The prices in every case are net, and do not include carriage. Directions for enclosure delivery in New York should accompany the order, unless shipment is to be by express at the charge of the subscriber. Copies of the Index volumes sent on approval. Address
